THE PLACE TO BE FOR BEMIDJI INFORMATION

Cheer: Autism ambassadors

Monday, November 28, 2005

Bradley Olson and his mother, Carol Olson, and sister, Stephanie Coyle, have been educating people in the Bemidji area about autism for about 25 years. Bradley's unique perceptions of the world and his ability to describe his differentness have opened the way for other people with different abilities. For Bradley, the gifts are music and computer talents. For his family, the gifts are outreach to the community here and at large about people with autism. Congratulations to Stephanie on the selection of her essay in the compilation "Voices from the Spectrum," and the family's positive response to all their challenges.
